

N.H.V.R. | New Hampshire Vocational Rehabilitation

New Hampshire Department of Education

We are the primary resource for businesses seeking solutions to their disability-related issues and for information about employing individuals with disabilities. With our help, employers are beginning to recognize New Hampshire Vocational Rehabilitation's (NHVR) role as a business consulting service that is able to help them meet the challenges of today's work environment by providing information on staffing, financial incentives, accessibility and accommodation options, educational programs, and expertise on the Americans with Disabilities Act. In addition, employers are beginning to understand that NHVR can help them gain a critical business advantage by connecting them with a qualified and largely untapped New Hampshire labor force. If you have a disability related business question and you have our number, you already have the right answer. Give one of us a call we look forward to working with you.

Some of the best New Hampshire job candidates are able-bodied workers with disabilities. These are people who don't let the little things get them down, and who know how to solve problems and work around obstacles. If you're interested in hiring a qualified worker with a disability, or if one of your valued employees becomes disabled and you want to keep them on the job, give me a call. I'm Jim Hinson, and I specialized in working with employers in your situation. I can help you with your questions about Workforce Accommodations, Financial Incentives, Employee Retention, Staffing, Support Services and much, much more. Give me a call, and I look forward to working with you.

JAMES C. PIET, MS

NH Department of Education – New Hampshire Vocational Rehabilitation Public Relations Specialist

James.Piet@doe.nh.gov

Jim is currently the Public Relations Specialist for the New Hampshire Department of Education, Division of Vocational Rehabilitation. A couple of his responsibilities are to promote VR services to individuals with disability, their families and other groups around the state. As a member of Jim Hinson’s team Jim provides support with scheduling expos around the state to promote the VR program and services to individuals with disabilities and also to employers seeking to hire people with disabilities within their companies. Also, he is a regular guest speaker at the University of New Hampshire to students who are enrolled in the special education program and working towards their teaching degrees. Not only does he talk about the VR program and services we provide to people with disability, he also speaks on disability issues like inclusion vs. segregation in the classroom. He also shares his own experiences dealing with everyday life with a disability. Previously at the UNH Institute on Disability, he helped create the New Hampshire Assistive Technology Partnership Project.

Jim is currently serving on the Board of Directors for Crotched Mountain Foundation. He is a member of the Quality Improvement Committee

While serving on New Hampshire’s State Council on Developmental Disabilities, Jim held the post of Chairman from 1993-2001. Simultaneously, as a member of the National Association on Developmental Disabilities Council, he was vice-president from 1997-1999. His work with these organizations allowed him to testify before the U.S. House Appropriations Sub-Committee on Labor, Health and Human Services and Education.

What our business partners are saying about New Hampshire Vocational Rehabilitation:

“From the start of the relationship with New Hampshire Vocational Rehabilitation we found that they have extensive knowledge and experience which they wanted to share. From any question that we needed answered to advice or recommendations for recruitment, they were right there to offer assistance, guidance and possible solutions. Their response time, customer service, and attention to detail have been one of a kind.” - M.Braun, Inc.

“New Hampshire Vocational Rehabilitation has provided employment assistance and support to RKM Research and Communications for fourteen years, and they have repeatedly proven to be an extraordinary resource for our business.” - RKM Research & Communications

“Through NHVR’s connections to the business community, New Hampshire employers are beginning to realize that what is good for people with disabilities is also very good for business’s bottom line.” - Greater Concord Chamber of Commerce

“In a time when so many government agencies are under fire from many arenas, the NHVR stands out as an outstanding example of the best in government services, organization, accomplishments and success.” - Brevan Electronics

“In today’s world, where customer service is much sought after, but frequently hard to find, NHVR is a breath of fresh air. All it takes is one phone call to NHVR and almost instantaneously, any disability-related question we have is answered – and so much more. NHVR is helping people get their lives back.” - Next Step Orthotics & Prosthetics, Inc
